About the French Neuroscience Society

The French Neuroscience Society is a non-profit association of researchers belonging to the public or private sector, operating in all areas of neuroscience, from basic to applied research, experimental to clinical research.

Number of members in 2018: nearly 2,000

Number of specialties: 7

- Development, synaptic plasticity
- Signalisation, cellular communications
- Neurological and psychiatric diseases, experimental therapeutics
- Integrative neuroscience, sensory physiology
- Neuroendocrinology, neuroimmunology
- Behaviour, emotions, cognition, neuroethology
- Theoretical and computational neuroscience

Objectives

- To promote research in all fields of neuroscience
- To inform policy makers about the need of a strong support for research on brain mechanisms and dysfunction
- To support education and training of young researchers
- To foster interactions between scientists and to highlight their findings
- To share scientific knowledge with the general public and to take part in discussions on the societal impact of neuroscience

Association focused internationally

In alliance with FENS (Federation of European Neuroscience Societies) and with IBRO (International Brain Research Organisation)

Activities throughout the year

- Alfred Fessard Conference
- Brain Awareness Week
- Thematic congresses

Publications

- A newsletter, La Lettre des Neurosciences (released twice a year)
- Scientific highlights of the year

Statistics for the 2017 edition

Marseille

Marseille is a metropolis in the southeast of France nestled on the Mediterranean. It is an ideal location for the organisation of congresses and seminars. With its international airport, its low-cost terminal, its highways connecting Spain, Italy and northern Europe and its TGV (rapid train) station, Marseille is a city with great accessibility. In addition to its exceptional natural setting between the sea and the hills, Marseille has sunny and mild weather all year round.

Going to the Congress Center

The Parc Chanot is located:

- 5 subway stops from the Train Station (direct line)
- 30 minutes from the International Airport Marseille Provence
- and only 3 hours from Paris in High Speed Train (23 connections per day)

The Parc Chanot

Rond-Point du Prado
13008 Marseille - France
www.marseille-chanot.com

Its location makes The Parc Chanot an exceptional venue: surrounded by numerous hotels, it is at the junction between three major motorways (North, East and Littoral), 20 minutes drive from the airport and linked to the main rail station by metro.

On the occasion of Marseille's nomination as European Capital of Culture in 2013, the Parc Chanot has undertaken a large renovation and modernization of its facilities.
